1. Background

Under the Health and Safety (First Aid) Regulations 1981, employers are responsible for providing adequate and appropriate equipment, facilities and personnel to ensure their employees receive immediate attention if they are injured or taken ill at work. HSE has published detailed first aid guidance to help employers comply with the regulations and offers practical advice on what they need to do.

While the regulations do not require employers to provide first aid for anyone other than their own employees, it is strongly recommended that all schools and colleges consider the needs of non-employees such as students, visitors and contractors when making provision for first aid.

First aid provision must be available while people are on school premises. It must also be available when staff, students are working elsewhere on any school business including any off-site activity such as educational visits. The regulations require employers to provide adequate and appropriate equipment, facilities and personnel based on a first aid needs assessment. This does not apply to work placements as work experience students are employed by the placement provider.

Most day-to-day functions in respect of health and safety and first aid are delegated to the Principal. LAT must provide any relevant information to help principals in drawing up a first aid needs assessment for their academy.

The minimum first aid provision for schools and colleges is:

- a suitable first aid container stocked in accordance with the findings of the first aid needs assessment and holding at least the minimum requirements suggested by HSE
- an appointed person or designated first aider(s) to take charge of first aid arrangements
- information for employees detailing the location of equipment, facilities and first aid trained personnel.

Each academy must appoint a person to take charge of the first aid arrangements, including looking after the equipment and facilities and calling emergency services when required. Arrangements should be made for the appointed person to be available to understand these duties at all times when people are at work. HSE First aid at work quidance is available.

The School Premises (England) Regulations 2012 state that suitable accommodation must be provided in order to cater for the medical and therapy needs of students, including accommodation for-

- 1. The medical examination and treatment of pupils
- 2. The short term care of sick and injured pupils, which includes a washing facility and is near to a toilet facility.

The accommodation provided may be used for other purposes (apart from teaching) provided it is always readily available to be used for the purpose of treating first aid and unwell students.

2. Purpose

The purpose of first aid is to provide immediate care and assistance to individuals who have been injured or become unwell.

- Preservation of life
- Prevention of the condition worsening
- Promotion of recovery
- Relief of pain and suffering
- Prevention of complications
- Promotion of safety and well-being

3. Scope

This document details the roles, responsibilities, measures, and resources necessary to provide timely and appropriate first aid to students, staff and visitors ensuring the safety and well-being of those in need

4. Description

All LAT employees will act in accordance with this arrangement as laid out in the roles and responsibilities in section 5 of this document.

All staff who have responsibilities for administering first aid at work shall be required to undertake relevant training by an approved training contractor. The training shall be refreshed periodically to ensure the skills and knowledge are up to date including any changes to the existing legislation.

In accordance with the requirements of the Health and Safety (First-Aid) regulations 1981 Leigh Academies Trust (LAT), will provide adequate and appropriate first-aid equipment, facilities and people to ensure that all employees will be given immediate help if they are injured or become ill whilst at work. What is considered to be adequate and appropriate provision will depend on the nature of each Academy's work and workplaces and the types of injuries and ill-health that may occur.

Whilst LAT has no legal obligation to make first aid provision available to non-employees, including students, visitors and contractors, LAT will ensure that these individuals are considered in first aid needs assessments and that adequate provision is made for them.

Lat will ensure that each academy and LAT Head Office, will complete a first aid assessment in consideration of the size and nature of their workplace, the hazards and associated risk of their work and other relevant factors.

LAT recognises that our employees, students and others can become ill injured at any time and therefore first aid provision must always be available when undertaking activities including educational visits, sport events and contractor maintenance,

Categories of first aid are as follows:

- First Aid at work
- Emergency First Aiders at work
- Paediatric First Aiders
- Appointed persons (appointed persons do not require formal training but can oversee first aid

The following factors will be considered when undertaking the needs assessment:

- Location and nature of the site
- Location of the nearest hospital
- The types of work being undertaken
- The work equipment being used
- Number of persons involved
- The first aid equipment required
- The amount of trained personnel and level of training required
